

Our Vision

SPIROL is a manufacturer of fasteners and components designed to facilitate the assembly process and meet the performance requirements of our customers. We are committed to be the supplier of choice to the international markets we serve by providing a positive customer experience in all things that we do. We pride ourselves in being a solution provider, working in collaboration with our customers in developing both commercial and technical solutions with the goal of lowering costs as well as improving performance. We appreciate the need to be a resourceful company that addresses opportunities and problem solving with an innovative, entrepreneurial spirit dedicated to highest standard for product quality, service and value.

We are a global company and as such are one cohesive entity whose combined resources based on the strength of our individual operating units creates more value for our customers. We are grounded in our engineering and technical strengths and heavily invested in our extensive manufacturing technology. Centers of manufacturing excellence supply strategically located distribution points. Our support functions – engineering, information technology, sales, quality assurance and customer service – are globally seamless. We bring extensive knowledge based on years of experience to our customers on all continents as a partner in the design and supply chain process.

Our employees are our most valuable resource and outstanding performance is essential to achieving our goal to be at the leading edge of overall quality achievement. We strive to provide a workplace for people to develop and flourish. We foster a culture of innovation, hard work, attention to detail, continuous improvement, and where individual achievement enhanced through cooperation yields superior results. We understand that a sense of urgency and an outlook that puts the customer first without compromising good business practices and our core values is essential to being the best in meeting our customers' expectations.

Our success will be measured by increased market share, positive employee attitude, shareholder support and profits that provide the financial stability and resources to serve our customers, invest in the future and fund our responsibility to our community with a focus on education and the environment.

